SUMMARY

A Montreal based frontend software developer with a strong background in IT management and e-business development, and a passion for creating memorable and engaging web experiences with React.

Recently, I started growing an interest in software development, particularly on the frontend side . I am currently focused on mastering React and Next.js, with the goal of building innovative solutions that enhance user experiences. When I am not coding, I enjoy exploring new technologies, studying numismatics, and spending time with my family.
